HISTORIC PHOTOS of IDAHO PANHANDLE

Winter Sport Activity in CDA

Ice skating enticed many skaters to Coeur d'Alene Lake early in the century, as is evidenced by this scene at the waterfront adjoining Tubbs Hill. Winter sport activity also included some ice boating, dating back to the era of Fort Sherman, 1878-1898. Many float houses lined the shore in those early days. With transportation limited, and skating virtually unknown early in the century, winter enthusiasts were more or less confined close to home. Because its waters could be depended on to freeze over annually, Fernan Lake soon became the most popular spot for skaters. It was here that amateur ice hockey competition thrived, as invading Spokane teams found it difficult to subdue the Coeur d'Alene Eskimos.
